Sunday Readings

Perseverance in Time of Trial

First Reading

There will arise the sun of justice with its healing rays (Malachi 3:19-20a).

Malachi, a name which means "my messenger," is the last word of the Old Testament as it falls last in the canon of its books. Writing about 400 years before the coming of Christ, Malachi has some scathing things to say about the irreverence of the worship and immorality of the actions of the priests and people of Israel after the return from Babylonian exile. God threatens to throw dung in the faces of the priests for offering defective sacrifices and not teaching the true doctrine of the covenant. He chastises the laity for being unfaithful to their marital covenants and for cheating the poor. That's the setting for our reading which speaks of the Day of the Lord, described as "blazing like an oven." This section of Malachi begins in 3:16 and is directed to "those who fear the Lord." These are the ones who'll be spared God's wrath and enjoy the "sun of justice." Malachi leaves us with this beautiful and consoling image. As with all of the prophets, judgment always finishes with mercy.

Second Reading

Paul speaks of his hard work among the Thessalonians (2 Thessalonians 3:7-12).

One of the wonderful characteristics of Christianity is that it's a livable creed. God intends that all be saved and so he has revealed to us a way of living that's moderate and ordered and which doesn't crush human nature, but rather brings it to its fullest flower. Paul is believed to have been a tentmaker by trade. In this portion of Paul's letter to the Thessalonians, he counsels them on the value of labor; of simply doing the business at hand in a quiet and industrious manner. Part of this same reading appears in the Lauds or Morning Prayer for the first Monday in the four-week cycle of Psalms in the Liturgy of the Hours; the official prayer of the Church. So the first workday in the Church's official prayer book gives us this encouragement to make our labor a prayer to the creator who labored in creating the cosmos and then, as a carpenter in Nazareth, and finally, to give us eternal life by bearing the cross to Calvary.

Gospel

Jesus foretells the destruction of Jerusalem, the persecution of his followers. But their perseverance will be their salvation (Luke 21:5-19).

Jesus gives a warning in outline form that elaborates on the prophecy he uttered in Luke 19:41-44 about the fall of the Temple. The importance of that event owes much to the symbolism represented in the construction of the Temple and its significance to the Jewish people. The Jews believed that God had designated the Temple Mount in Jerusalem as the place where he had specifically directed that his name would be hallowed. Jewish lore held that the Temple rested at the center of the universe and at a place where heaven, earth, and the underworld intersected. The Temple was constructed in three parts (Outer Court, Holy Place, and Holy of Holies) which corresponded to the three great divisions of creation (water above the heavens, land, and the water around the land). The Temple was a kind of microcosm, a universe miniature.

When Jesus foretells its destruction, he's in effect saying that the old world is passing away and that time is pregnant with a new age which is about to come to birth. That new age is the kingdom of God, the New Covenant in Christ. That's the world we inhabit as Catholics, citizens of that kingdom, and heirs of that covenant.

and Meditation

Meditation

The message of this week's Gospel reading can be summed up in the last line: "By your perseverance, you will secure your lives." Just as the earliest Christians before us, we are all called to embrace the trials, struggles, and persecutions that may come our way as a result of our faith. We can rest, however, in knowing that God always promises to rescue those who remain faithful to him. We must remain faithful; we must pick up our crosses daily; we must persevere.

In our world today, suffering (of any kind) is seen as the greatest of evils and is to be avoided at all costs. Jesus, however, calls us to face the trials that may come our way with courage. Take some time by yourself right now and reflect on a troubling area in your life.

Are you approaching a difficulty with confidence and hope in the Lord or with discouragement, frustration, or despair? Is there a certain trial or difficulty in your life where you are wavering in your trust in the Lord? How might perseverance in faith and greater trust in God help you find greater security in your life?

In prayer, ask Jesus to show you at least one specific way you can live out his teaching to persevere in faith, and ask him for the grace to help you to do that this week.

As we listen to this week's video, be encouraged by the message of hope that Jesus will come to rescue those who remain faithful to him in times of difficulty, trial, and suffering.

Prayer to St Michael

St. Michael the Archangel, defend us in battle. Be our protection against the wickedness and snares of the Devil. May God rebuke him, we humbly pray, and do thou, O Prince of the heavenly hosts, by the divine power of God, cast into hell satan, and all the evil spirits, who roam throughout the world seeking the ruin of souls. Amen.

Prayers

Prayer During a Difficult Time

Dear Lord, during this trial, I offer up to you my confusion;
Give me clarity.
I offer up to you my despair;
Give me hope.
I offer up to you my weakness;
Give me strength.
I offer up to you my pettiness;
Give me generosity of spirit.
I offer up to you all my negative thoughts from Satan,
so that when he asks "Where is your God now?"
I may respond "Right here with me, giving me his grace
As a heavenly beam of light penetrating your darkness!"
Amen.

Prayers for Persecuted Christians

For those who are threatened by persecution, starvation and deadly violence because of their Christian faith, may they be strengthened by their faith in Jesus Christ and our solidarity with them.

That the God of light may inspire leaders of governments to uphold religious freedom and care for the well-being of all people, especially the poor and vulnerable.

For Christians throughout the world who are persecuted for the faith, may they be freed from fear and anxiety and strengthened in their courageous witness and may peace come to their troubled lands.

For those who have suffered violent death because of their faith, may they now live in the light of God's face.

For Our Beloved Dead

For the repose of the soul of Thomas James Nugent, Jr.

For all those written in our parish's Book of the Dead and all those represented on our All Souls altar inside the church.

"Do not weep, for I shall be more useful to you after my death and I shall help you then more effectively than during my life. I want to spend my heaven in doing good on earth." —St. Therese of Lisieux

Brush Up on the Last Things

As we approach the end of the liturgical year, the Mass readings are rich with an eschatological theme, or the theology of the last things, the end of the world. We celebrated the saints in heaven, and we continue to pray for the souls of our beloved dead. We also take time to take stock of our own lives, examining our relationship with Christ. We do not know when our earthly lives will end, nor do we know when Christ will return in glory. But we do know that both events will indeed happen.

Here are some online resources to brush up on Catholic teaching of the last things:

Thank You from the Melendez Family

My family and I would like to thank the clergy, staff, and parishioners of St. Michael's for all your love and support at the time of my husband's death last month. We are so appreciative of all the cards, flowers, prayers, and Masses during these past weeks. A special thanks to all who brought food and helped with the funeral reception. We are overwhelmed by your kindness and generosity, and extend heartfelt thanks to all of you.
