in Ordinary Time

Well done, my good and faithful servant.
Since you were faithful in small matters,
I will give you great responsibilities.
Come, share your master's joy.

Matthew 25:21

Using Our Talents

As we approach the final weeks of the Church year, we read the last parable Jesus taught. It's not only the final parable, but it is also one of the longest and most detailed. In it, Jesus tells the story of a wealthy man who gave each of his servants a substantial sum of money to take care of in his absence. When he returns, he is pleased at the two servants who have doubled his investment, but he is angry at the one who simply hid the money out of fear of losing it.

We can interpret this story on a purely financial level, talking about the need to shrewdly use our money, but the parable goes deeper than that. It also addresses the wise stewardship of the gifts and talents God has given us.

Clearly Jesus is telling us that we must put our abilities at the service of the Master, God our Father. But before we can do that, we have to discern what our gifts are. We all have been given special abilities by God. It's up to us to figure out what those abilities are and how we can best put them into practice so that at the end of our lives we will hear the words of the Master telling us, "Well done, good and faithful servant."

First Reading

Proverbs 31:10–13, 19–20, 30–31

This first reading picks up where our Gospel last week left off. Then, we saw the Groom entering into the eschatological wedding feast; that is, the eternal marriage between God and his creatures in heaven. This reading from Proverbs on the virtues of a "worthy wife" can be read in a very straightforward, literal fashion, as a description of the ideal spouse. But it can also be read as a description of the Bride of Christ, the Church at her best. This makes for an especially cogent reading when our first reading is read in the light of the parable of the talents in our Gospel this week. The worthy wife is one who uses what comes to hand to enrich the family and yet has enough left over to see to the needs of the poor. Read in this way, we get perhaps a clearer picture of what it means for the Church to render a return of double to her Groom in this passage from Proverbs than we do in our Gospel.

Second Reading

1 Thessalonians 5:1–6

This passage indicates to the Thessalonians the need for vigilance in regard to Christ's coming again. It indicates the same to us, but it also indicates to us the coming end of the liturgical year. We always read these sorts of passages as we come close to the season of Advent—the end of the old, and the advent of the new year.

There's often a tension in these eschatological passages between knowing and not knowing the time of his coming. Those who live in the dark can't see the signs of his coming. Those who live in the day or in the light have some idea, but still don't know the exact time of his coming. The Lord's coming is the day—it's a determined time—and to recognize it for what it is, we must live in the day. Our liturgical recollection of his Second Coming each year is one of the ways we do that. The light we receive from the Scriptures proclaimed in the liturgy is a way of accustoming our eyes to the light of the day of the Lord.

Gospel Reading

Matthew 25:14–30

Viewed as an expression of the workings of grace, we can distinguish two levels in the parable that Jesus tells. The initial sums of money given to the servants could be actual grace—that grace given to all, Christian or not, to encourage good actions. God rains these graces down on us incessantly. However, he doesn't expect us to simply behave well. Even under the influence of actual grace, our works won't win us salvation. It's only when actual grace leads us to sanctifying grace, the grace we receive in the sacraments, that we can be said to be living in a state of grace. That's so because the grace of the sacraments unites us to Christ, who also opens the gates of heaven to us and makes us capable of living there. We must invest the actual graces he gives. It isn't enough to simply return them in the amount we received. His actual grace should prompt us to also receive the sacraments as acts of perfect worship and transformation. Having received the sacraments, having invested his actual grace there, we receive a tremendous return in the reception of sanctifying grace. That sacramental grace moves us in turn to real, supernatural repentance and charity.

Discussion Questions

We hear a lot in the Church about stewardship. What does that word mean to you?

As we near the end of the Church year, we hear one last parable from Jesus—the parable of the talents. Let's see what new insights we might get from the presenter about this story. Watch the short Opening the Word video right at the top of the home page on FORMED.org

The parable of the talents can be read on two levels; one is financial responsibility and a possible lesson in investing. What is the other?

What does this parable tell us God expects us to do with our talents?

What are some of the talents the presenter talks about that you may possess?

DIGGING DEEPER: Talented Money

A talent was a standard sum of money in the ancient world. While its exact value is difficult to calculate, one way is by looking at what members of the military received. During the Peloponnesian war in Ancient Greece, a talent was the amount of silver needed to pay the crew of a trireme for one month. Each crew member was commonly paid one drachma for every day of service, and 6,000 drachma made a talent. If we assume that a Greek rower was paid about the same as a junior enlisted member (E-2) of the US armed forces, a talent would be about $300,000 in today's money.

Challenge

On page 5, you will see opportunities to use your talents to be a Christmas Usher or Crossing Guard, a member of the Altar Society or a member of one of the Christmas Choirs. Are you being called?

Prayers & Devotion

This week, let's enter ourselves in the parable of the talents and see what God might have to reveal to us.

Prayer

Think of yourself as one of the servants in the parable. Consider that a talent would be worth about $300,000 in today's money. How many "talents" has the master given you? Look at them and then, honestly, decide what you would do if you were given responsibility for $300,000, $900,000 or $3,000,000. Would you be excited about investing it, or would you be afraid to lose it? What would you do with that much money? Now focus on your own gifts and abilities. How are you using them? Are you afraid to "invest" them for fearing of losing them?

Resolution

Take a few minutes to write down some of the talents and gifts you possess. Make a decision to take at least one small step in implementing a neglected or undeveloped talent that you can put in the service of others this week.

Use the free Opening the Word guide on FORMED.org to write down your thoughts and reflections and your resolutions.

The Solemnity of Our Lord Jesus Christ, King of the Universe
(The last day of the liturgical year)

When the world ends, we are told that God is going to focus on one thing: How did we care for the poor, the sick, the suffering? Nothing else will matter. Just how we treated who Jesus called “the least” among us. The world at large has the final judgment wrong, but so do many Christians. The bottom line for God is going to be how we treated others because, as Jesus says, the way we treat others is ultimately the way we treat him.

Latin Mass Returns in January

When will Latin Mass take place?

On the second Sunday of the month at 8:00 am, January—June.

Will missals be provided?

Missals will be provided with the English (and also Spanish) translation of the Latin.

Will there be music?

The “Low Mass” will be celebrated without music. If well attended, adding organ music will be the next step.

Will the priest have his back to the congregation?

Yes—but that is the wrong way to think about it. It is not a question of turning his back on the people. Instead, the priest and the people together face the same direction, toward God.

Is receiving Communion different at the Latin Mass?

Yes. Communicants kneel at a Communion rail and receive on the tongue. We do not respond with “Amen”. The priest will bring Communion to those who are unable to leave their pews. Those who wish to come forward but who cannot kneel may stand.

How does the congregation actively participate?

With attentive hearts and minds, united with the priest, we adore God together, much like we do in the Adoration Chapel.

For more information at resources about the Latin Mass, please visit StMichaelLivermore.com/Latin
