Reflect &

Jesus said
to his disciples:

“I have come to

and how I wish

Luke 12:49

I Have Not Come to Establish Peace

Reflection by Opening the Word

First Reading

They took Jeremiah and threw him into the cistern (Jeremiah 38:4-6, 8-10).

Jeremiah is a prophet and a prophetic figure of Christ. In this passage, we see him delivered from a sort of tomb, as Christ was from the sepulcher. Jeremiah was particularly zealous for God and indicted several of the last kings of Judah for their political and diplomatic maneuvers aimed at avoiding the inevitable conquest by the Babylonian empire, which Jeremiah knew to be the appointed chastisement of God. Of course it is no surprise that this would be thought to be treasonous by those in power, and Jeremiah paid a heavy price for his fidelity to God. Jeremiah also gives us a clear picture of the internal struggles of soul that all those who fight against the enemies of God must face. We have even come to call “Jeremiads” the sorts of complaints to God that we find in the book called Lamentations, which chronicles the struggles of the prophet and the Jewish nation he loved, and to whose best and truest aspirations he gave voice.

Second Reading

Let us keep our eyes fixed on Jesus, the leader and perfecter of faith (Hebrews 12:1-4).

Hebrews is a long exhortation addressed to Hebrew Christians who have been tempted to return to the practices of Judaism. The author makes elaborate arguments from the Old Testament to show that the law, Temple, and Levitical priesthood have all found their fulfillment and perfect expression in Christ. We can only imagine how hard a sell this must have been, given the history and grandeur of Jewish ritual practice and all it had meant to the Jewish people. Scholars believe that those to whom the work is addressed may have been priests who had been forced to flee Jerusalem because of their Christian commitment and who now long for the ritual in which they had played a part.

The Christian worship in the early Church might have seemed rather plain in comparison, not yet having acquired the majesty it would later express. Unlike the grandeur of the visible Temple, which could be seen with the eye, the grandeur of the new life in Christ required faith to see, and it would invite persecution, not Levitical honors. And so we have this appeal to the heroism of a faith that yields “evidence of things not seen,” as we saw in last Sunday’s passage and now in this one for the Twentieth Sunday. This appeal conjures in the minds of these Jews a great “cloud of witnesses” from Jewish history, most of whom had lived long ago and had never seen the Temple. We, too, he argues, long for the Temple that Christ has now entered, but which we have not yet seen. If we keep our eyes on him, the pioneer who has gone before us, we can have faith that we will see that most beautiful of Temples on high.

Gospel Reading

I have come to set the earth on fire, and how I wish it were already blazing (Luke 12:49-53).

For many of us the missing critical dimension of our faith is that sort of zeal that our Lord showed on our behalf. The greatest obstacle we face in this regard is that ours is a culture that stresses personal comfort and fulfillment above all. As C.S. Lewis put it, "For wise men of old, the cardinal problem of human life was how to conform the soul to objective reality, and the solution was wisdom, self-discipline, and virtue. For the modern, the cardinal problem is how to conform reality to the wishes of man." That quality of culture teaches us to be dissatisfied with discomfort, with struggle, with sacrifice, and it saps our spiritual energies.

Jesus in this Gospel passage is shown hungering for the sacrifice that will win the salvation of the human race, even despising the shame of the cross, as our second reading from Hebrews says. He is a warrior for the good of souls. That is a particularly apt image with reference to this passage from Luke where he asks, "Do you think that I have come to establish peace on the earth? No, I tell you, but rather division." He, of course, doesn't will the opposition he will face from evil men and spirits, nor is he shy in facing it, even unto death, for those who need his help. St. Thomas Aquinas notes that zeal is proportionate to the intensity of love, and the love of true friendship creates a zeal that energetically repels anything that might harm one's friend. From Jesus, who has made us his friends and loved and defended us from death, we can learn to love him zealously in return.

Meditation

Today's Gospel reading discusses how our Christian faith may result in division and conflict even within our own families. It warns us that people may have very different responses when they see our faith and learn about our moral convictions. Some friends and family members might be thrilled; others may think we're a bit strange. Still others might look down on us and think we are judgmental and intolerant.

Think about the people in your own life; what effect does your faith have on others?

Imagine you lived in Jesus' time. You have been following him, listening to him teach, watching him minister, seeing him work miracles. Now he's headed toward Jerusalem where he says he will suffer and be crucified. You hear him say that if you want to follow him, the way will be rough, your companions may be few, and many in the world may not want to hear your message. Even family members, friends, or co-workers may look down on you or simply not understand.

Will you still follow? Will you trust him when he says it will be okay despite the hardships—that the reward will far outweigh the cost? How do you respond?

Opening the Word offers prayers and insights for the Sunday Scriptural lessons. Featuring videos designed to facilitate thought and discussion for faith formation, Personal Prayer Journals and a Group Leader's Guide, Opening the Word helps you to make the most of the Sunday readings. Opening the Word is one of many programs available at Formed.org.

Our Parishioners' Prayer Requests

For the intentions of Robert Makepeace.

For Fernando Castro, Jorge Sierra and Mike Surritte who are ill.

For the students and staff at Orientation Center for the Blind in Albany.

For the St Michael Parish Fall Festival committee, that their efforts may be blessed to give glory to God.

That numerous new families join our St Michael School community.

For a new evangelization ministry that is in the early stages of forming at our parish.

For our Portuguese Community as they celebrate Our Lady of Help.

For those who will be attending the Charismatic Retreat, that they may receive abundant gifts from the Holy Spirit.

We ask all of our intentions through the intercession of our Blessed Mother, as we celebrate her Assumption into heaven this week.

O most gracious Virgin Mary, that never was it known that anyone who fled to thy protection, implored thy help, or sought thy intercession was left unaided. Inspired with this confidence, I fly to thee, O Virgin of virgins, my Mother; to thee do I come; before thee I stand, sinful and sorrowful. O Mother of the Word Incarnate, despise not my petitions, but in thy mercy hear and answer me.

Amen.

Thanks to the Raffle Ticket Mailing Volunteers!

Thanks to all the volunteers who helped with the raffle ticket mailing. Without your help we would not have been able to finish the mailing.

Did You Get Your Raffle Tickets?

Registered parishioners should have received raffle tickets in the mail. Each family is encouraged to sell all 10 tickets to their friends, relatives, and neighbors. Please return the stubs with payment at the church office or give them to a member of the festival committee after the Mass. We will also have extra tickets for sale after the mass in the courtyard.

Donations for Silent and Live Auction

We are still accepting donations for the silent auction and live auction. Do you have season tickets to the A's, Raiders, Niners, Warriors, Sharks and Giants? How about donating one game for the auction?

For more information or if you have any questions, please contact the Fall Festival Chair. Corry Painter at (925) 577-9939.

Prize Booth Tree

We are asking for donations of gift cards for the prizes for the game booths. Gift cards for $5.00, $10.00 and $25.00 from Jamba Juice, Quickly, Starbucks, Target, Barnes and Noble and Amazon are accepted.

A donation tree has been set up in the chapel lobby next to the reading station. You can pick out one of the tree ornaments and donate whatever is written on the ornament.

Please drop off the gift card at the church office (c/o Festival Committee) or give it to a member of the festival committee after the mass.
