Getting Behind the Messiah

Winter can be depressing. Depending on where you live in the country, you may not see the sun for two or three months. The temperature can be bone-chillingly cold, and there is little sign of life except for the brave neighbors shoveling their driveways. The days are short and dark, the trees are lifeless, and we don't hear children playing outside or birds chirping. It can seem very desolate. Carrying our cross is often a "winter" for our soul. It can be challenging, lonely, and may seem never-ending. The hope that we have in Christ is like hoping for the springtime. We carry our cross and die to ourselves so that we can experience the Resurrection with him. Just as flowers bud and blossom again, the trees grow leaves, and the sun grows warmer in the springtime, so too do our souls become nourished and refreshed when we give ourselves entirely to Christ. But, in order to experience this beautiful springtime, we must first go through the trial of winter.

First Reading Reflection Isaiah 50:5–9a

This passage from the second half of Isaiah is the third of the four Servant Songs. The servant of the Lord depicted in these songs points forward to Christ, who will suffer for the sins of the people. In this third song, we find the servant engaging in three specific heroic actions, which lead to one concrete result. First, he speaks the Lord's word to encourage others who are "weary" (Isaiah 50:4), which corresponds to Jesus's proclamation of the Kingdom of God. Second, he listens to the Lord and submits to his will in humble obedience, as we see Jesus do in the Garden of Gethsemane (see Luke 22:42). Third, the Servant endures undeserved suffering—beating, beard plucking, insults, and spitting—which point forward to Jesus's suffering during his trial, scourging, and crucifixion. In all of these difficulties, however, the servant does not lose heart. He looks to God as his "help" (Isaiah 50:9) and believes that the Lord will vindicate his honor after the time of suffering is ended. The vindication of the servant corresponds to Jesus's Resurrection from the dead, which demonstrates that eternal life is stronger than death. In fact, through death, Christ has conquered death. In order for us to be truly Christian, we must imitate the life of the Suffering Servant. Like him, we must listen to the Lord, submitting ourselves to him in complete obedience. As part of our obedience, we must be willing to undergo suffering for the sake of the Gospel, while we imitate Jesus's preaching by sharing the Good News with other people. If we follow in the footsteps of Jesus, then we too will share in his victory and hopefully experience the Resurrection of the dead.

Second Reading Reflection James 2:14–18

Religion can easily become a mere abstraction. We see this phenomenon in contemporary notions of those who are "spiritual but not religious" or in self-soothing meditation. It is tempting to think of Christianity as a form of therapy, in which our personal needs are met by "feel good" theology. In these ways and many others, faith remains merely at the emotive level, without actually influencing my life or my actions. St. James is warning us against this type of belief in his letter. He is likely trying to correct bad interpretations of Saint Paul's teachings on faith and works. Paul focuses on salvation by faith rather than by observing the ritual prescriptions of the Law of Moses, which many Jews regarded as necessary for salvation. Paul shows that God wanted the Gentiles, who do not observe circumcision, kosher eating, and other rituals to be part of his new covenant family in Christ. Yet some people misunderstood Paul and thought that he wasn't concerned about works as much as faith. James teaches us that we must act on our faith, not just intellectually assent to our faith. Believing in Jesus is a life-transforming event, which is meant to impact every area of our lives. Nevertheless, we don't simply "earn" a ticket to Heaven through good behavior. Jesus is the one who saves us, but we must cooperate with his grace, repent of our sins, and live with the theological virtues of faith, hope, and charity.

Gospel Reading Reflection

Mark 8:27-35

Many people acknowledge Jesus as a great religious teacher but do not actually follow his teachings. Today's Gospel drives home the fact that mere intellectual recognition of Jesus is not enough. He asks his disciples, "Who do people say that I am?" (Mark 8:27). After they give him a report, he then asks them personally, "But who do you say that I am?" (v. 29). The point is that we cannot acknowledge Jesus's existence but then not make any changes to our lives. Rather, we must be baptized in the name of the Lord and then surrender our entire lives to him, rejecting our bad habits. And, if we were baptized as infants, we must ask for an increase in the theological virtues of faith, hope, and charity as we journey toward the heavenly fatherland. Saint Peter sets the example for us by publicly proclaiming that Jesus is the Messiah, but he fails to accept the whole mission. When Jesus predicts his own Passion, Death, and Resurrection, Peter denies that it will happen, showing his own lack of faith in Christ's redemptive mission. In turn, Jesus rebukes Peter as "Satan" for failing to think like God thinks. Jesus's words recall the words of Isaiah: "My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways my ways" (Isaiah 56:8). Our thinking can be very limited, yet we must have faith in Christ's Paschal Mystery. In fact, suffering and death are at the heart of Christ's mission as the Messiah, and the same will be true for us as we follow him. In order to be real disciples of Christ, we must follow Jesus on the road to Mt. Calvary: deny oneself, take up the cross, and follow him. The only way to save your life is to lose it (see v. 35) and the only path to resurrection is through suffering and death.

How do you put your faith into practice?

Jesus asks his disciples, "Who do you say that I am?" Take some time to answer this question as Jesus asks you - who do YOU say that he is?

How do you understand Jesus, and how would you describe this understanding to others?

PRAYER

Jesus speaks plainly to his disciples today. He frankly shares with them the Father's plan, which he will bring to fruition at his Crucifixion. His plan is difficult to understand for the people who love him and now depend on him. Imagine hearing that your dear friend and teacher would have to suffer greatly and be killed. Like Peter, our reaction would probably be one of denial.

But Jesus's words should shock us. He tells Peter, "Get behind me, Satan." How can Jesus call Peter "Satan," when he will become the Rock on which the Catholic Church is built? How can the first Pope be called "Satan?" Jesus's harsh rebuke of St. Peter indicates the gravity of his doubt: Peter doubts the Paschal Mystery. Namely, he doubts that Christ will redeem the world through his Passion, Death, and Resurrection. Peter doubts the very means of his own salvation! Today, let us pray that we place all our faith in Christ's death and resurrection, recognizing the salvation that he won for us on the Cross.

RESOLUTION

Today's Gospel is not a "feel good" teaching. Take some time to answer Jesus's question to his disciples: "Who do you say that I am?" Write down your answer. If Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, then to whom else can we turn? Next, take some time to recognize the cross or crosses you are facing. How can you "take up your cross" this week? What will change in your attitude towards these trials? Write down your commitment. If you need to post it on your bathroom mirror as a reminder, do so!

Use your Prayer Journal to write down your thoughts, your reflections, and your resolutions.

This movie captures the Capuchin friar's intense faith, devotion, and deep spiritual concern for others, as well as his great compassion for the sick and suffering. It reveals the amazing details and events in Padre

Pio's life as a boy and throughout his fifty years as a friar, dramatizing the frequent attacks from the devil, as well as the persecution he suffered at the hands of people, including those in the Church.

Please contact Mike Taranowski at taranowski1@gmail.com if you are interested in leading one of the rosaries as a family.
